

The image features a series of 100 concentric, irregular blobs. The blobs are centered on a white background and expand outwards in a roughly circular pattern. The colors of the blobs transition from a dark gray at the center to various shades of green as they move outwards. The green shades range from a medium green to a bright, vibrant green at the outermost edges. The blobs have a soft, organic, and somewhat fluid appearance, resembling ink blots or biological cells. The overall effect is a sense of depth and growth, with the center being the darkest and most defined, and the outer edges being the brightest and most diffuse.

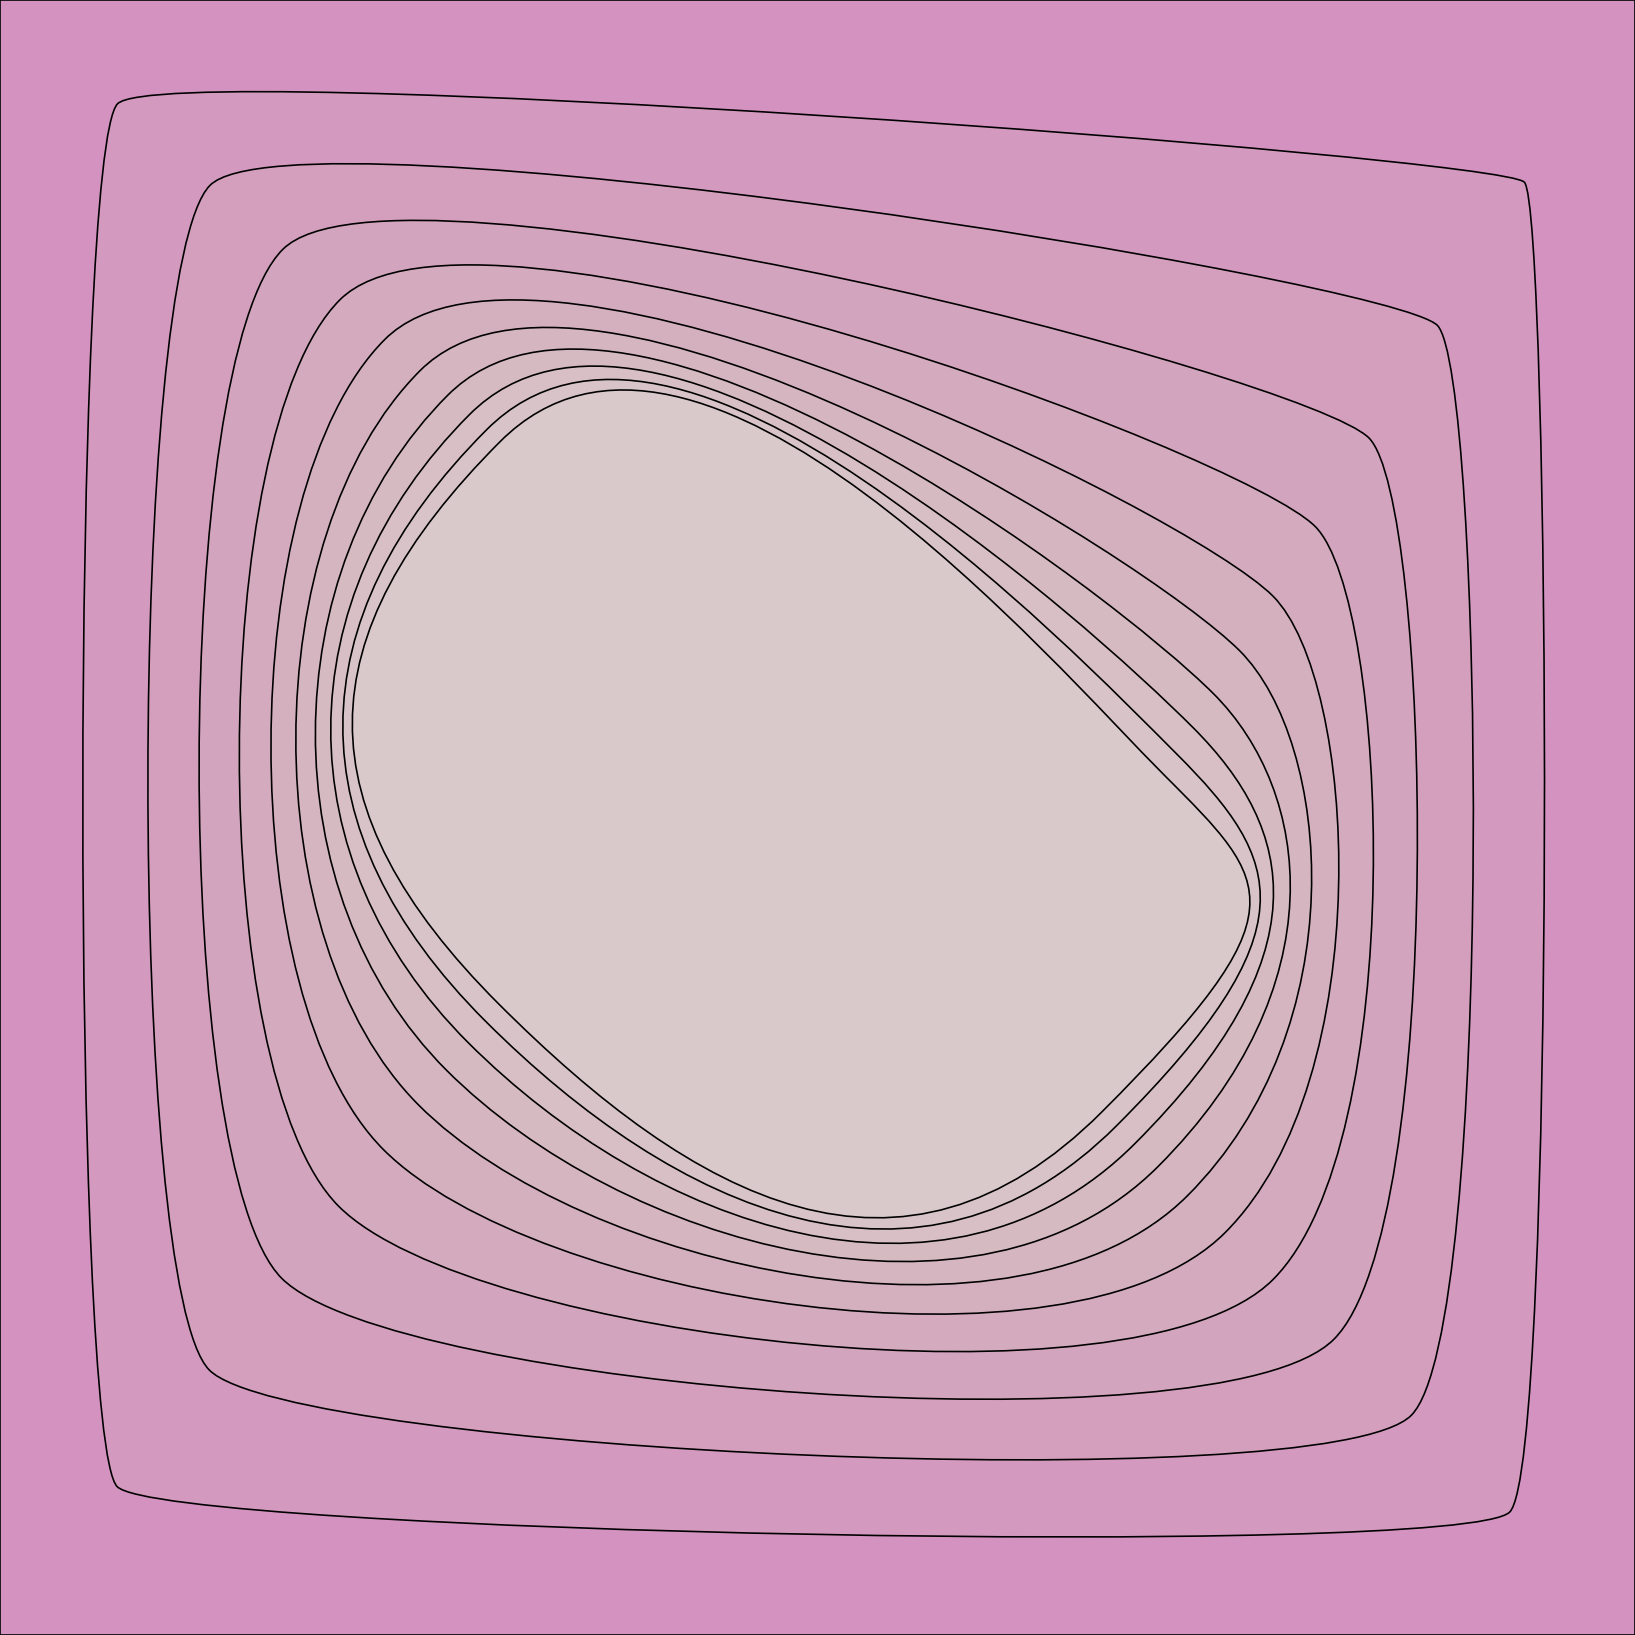

100 random blobs
